

Commodore Hotel

They call Cape Town the Fairest Cape of all - a city with a vivid historical past and rousing natural splendour. Perhaps the most magnificent sight of all, is the panorama of Table Mountain as it cradles the city and dips its toes in the Atlantic Ocean.

A visitor to the Commodore Hotel will find himself enveloped inside this postcard picture. The hotel is located in the V & A Waterfront - one of the most popular tourism developments in the world - and offers limitless views of South Africa's Mother City. Offering superb service and excellent cuisine in a secure and friendly environment, this premier hotel has 198 elegantly furnished Superior Rooms, Business Class rooms, First Class Suites and one Imperial Suite. All rooms at the Commodore enjoy breathtaking views and have individual air-conditioners, television, tea and coffee machines, en suite bathrooms with bath, shower and toilet and direct dial telephones.

Amenities include a transit lounge where early arrivals and late departures can relax, and a well-equipped gymnasium overlooking the pool area, with sauna, steam room and personal trainers. The Clipper Restaurant (seats 160 people) has a very historic feel about it and serves fresh seafood. Light meals are available on the terrace from early to late.

Portswood Hotel

The Portswood Hotel, a 4-star hotel with a nautical theme, is situated in the heart of Cape Town's unique V&A Waterfront, and a short drive from the CBD (central Business District). Situated on the site of an old prison, the hotel has incorporated original buildings into the new hotel. The Portswood Hotel offers views from Table Mountain, across the Atlantic and Robben Island, over the beaches in the distance and around to where Signal Hill meets the mountain.

Smaller than the Commodore, The Portswood hotel offers suitable accommodation for those who aren't looking for any "over the top" African flavoured Cape Town hotels. The rooms with views of the harbour and the magnificent Table Mountain, are fully-equipped with air-conditioning, television set with M-Net and tea / coffee machines.

The Portswood is functional and no-frills and the friendly staff will provide you with a conventional hotel experience. The business traveller will be amply catered for here and on those sweltering Cape Town summer days, can revive in the welcoming swimming pool. The PortsWood Hotel's Quarterdeck Restaurant is a relaxed yet elegant restaurant, uniquely housed in the Old Convict Station building. This beautifully restored National Monument with its rich history, is the perfect setting to savour The Quarterdeck's renowned breakfasts and Cape Malay cuisine.
