

Linkwasha

Linkwasha is situated in a private area in southeast Hwange National Park on a private concession bordering onto Makalolo Plain's concession in Zimbabwe. The area includes many diverse habitats including teak forests, palm islands, Kalahari savannah and acacia woodlands. The animal populations are equally diverse and the area attracts over 400 species of birds. The nearby waterholes provide a refreshing oasis for much of the wildlife. The camp is set in a most beautiful location in the middle of a broad plain overlooking the camp's waterhole. Each guest has wonderful, unrestricted views from their rooms across the plains.

Linkwasha is a 14~bedded camp, with a total of 7 tents. The rooms are large, comfortable and have tented walls under thatch with en suite facilities, including a shower, basin and flush toilet, and an outside shower "under the stars". Also, each room comes with fans, wooden doors, gas radiator heaters (for winter months), and each are mosquito proof.

The area is known during our winter months for its big game, in particular large concentrations of Elephant and Buffalo. Lion, Leopard, Cheetah and Hyena are regulars, and their prey includes all the plains game. Roan and Sable are seen in the woodlands. Birdlife is abundant and diverse. During the summer, after the first rains, we see a large influx of the plains game ~ Eland, Zebra, Giraffe and Wildebeest arrive in large concentrations to feed off the new grasses and shrubs on the plains, closely followed by their predators. Game drives in 4x4 Land Rovers and walks with an armed guides form part of the experience at Linkwasha. Viewing game close up at a waterhole from one of the area's many hides is an experience not to be forgotten. The dining room, pub and lounge area is under thatch and there is a plunge pool. A viewing platform affords great views across the plains. Raised board walks connect the main dining area with the rooms.
