

Lake Manyara Tree Lodge

The lodge is set one of the most diverse parks in Tanzania. Located towards the north of the country, Lake Manyara National Park boasts an incredible wealth of habitats, from swamps and a tranquil lake to the mountain escarpment of the Great Rift Valley. In the heart of a mahogany forest in the southern reaches of the park, is the exclusive Lake Manyara Tree Lodge.

It takes the place of Maji Moto Tented Camp and has been designed to exert minimal impact on the environment. The lodge boasts 10 spacious tree houses cradled in the boughs of mahogany trees and is situated about a kilometer from the lakeshore.

The lodge is a sophisticated blend of intimacy and romance, offering privacy and exclusivity in cool, leafy surrounds.

The stunning landscape and surrounds inspired the famous American novelist Ernest Hemingway's great novel "Green Hills of Africa", which he wrote following a month long safari he took here with his wife Pauline in 1933.
